HOW APPROACHABLE ARE YOU?

As Playhouse Square volunteers, one of the key qualities to possess is approachability. This is a way to demonstrate our PSQ values of caring and belonging.

Many of our guests are visiting Playhouse Square for the first time – or it has been a while since their last visit. These patrons rely on our volunteers to answer their questions, lead them to their seats, and help in any other situation that may arise.

One of the easiest ways to signal approachability is through body language.

- Do you come across as bored or disinterested? Are your arms crossed? Do you have your hands in your pockets? Are you leaning on a railing?
- Are you making eye contact with the people you are talking to?
- Are you coming across as friendly and welcoming? Are you smiling?

As we start the new season – please keep in mind the first impression you are creating with your body language.
